Nazi-held Ukraine steel center of Kharkov was gravely imperilled today by forward-surfing Red army columns which tore into the German Winter defense line at several more points and advanced to within artillery range of the city.

(A Stockholm dispatch to the Daily Telegraph in London said a terrific tank battle was raging all along the front before Kharkov for a distance of 60 miles from Belgorod to the north to Smiev in the south. The Germans were said to have thrown in fresh armored forces to combat the Russian tide.)

Hundreds of additional Nazi dead lay strewn over the snow-covered battle front as the Red army crushed German opposition to maintain a steady advance following the capture of Chuguyev, 22 miles southeast of Kharkov, and Volchansk, 36 miles northeast of the industrial city.

(The British radio, quoting a Moscow report, said that Russian armies advancing on Kharkov from Chuguyev "are now within 15 miles of Kharkov itself.")

At noon the Soviet high command said that its forces in the Belgorod area, 50 miles above Kharkov, continued their successful advance and occupied a number of inhabited localities.

Hershey Called To Testify On Kilday Bill Setting Up New Classes

BULLETIN
WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of selective service, today told congress that the great majority of all physically fit men between the ages of 18 and 38 will be drafted into the armed services regardless of dependents or occupation before the end of the year.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—Congress scheduled hearings today on proposals to radically change the Draft Act.

The House Military Affairs Committee today called Draft Director Lewis B. Hershey before it to testify on the bill by Rep. Kilday (D) Texas, to overhaul selective service machinery.

Kilday's measure would scrap present draft classifications and set up four new ones in their stead. They would be: 1. single men; 2. single men with persons financially dependent on them; 3. married men without children; 4. married men with children. It also would create statewide pools of all available men in the first three classes before class four is called.

He introduced the bill after he attacked the edict of War Manpower Commissioner Paul McNutt, saying, in effect, that men with children had better get war jobs or face induction.

McNutt could not be called immediately to testify on the Kilday bill because he was in Chicago where he made a speech on the manpower situation.

There were no indications when congress would take up the bill (Continued on Page Three)

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—"Rationing and other things we have had to date are nothing compared with what we will have in 1944 or 1945," Mayor F. H. LaGuardia insisted today.

Addressing a group of CDVO volunteers, he warned that the nation is yet to feel the real pinch of the war.

"But," LaGuardia added, "you don't hear any complaints from the fellows who are doing the fighting and the ones who have returned wounded or maimed."

Willkie and Bricker Seen as Favorites for Presidential Nomination

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—Wendell Willkie, the GOP standard-bearer of 1940, and Governor John W. Bricker, of Ohio, today are regarded as "favorites" for the Republican presidential nomination next year, although former President Herbert Hoover looms in the background as a remote possibility.

This is the consensus among Republican legislators on Capitol Hill. Most Republicans say Willkie and Bricker must be eliminated before any other possibility — including Hoover — can be given serious consideration.

Further in the background are Governor Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, Sen. Robert A. Taft, of Ohio, Governor Dwight H. Green, of Illinois, and Governor Earl Warren, of California. Still further in the rear are Governor Harold E. Stassen, of Minnesota, Governor Leverett Saltonstall, of Massachusetts, and Sen. Charles L. McNary, of Oregon.

Wheeler May Bolt
Republican interest in their 1944 nominee was heightened when Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, Montana Democrat, announced he would bolt his party if its nominee in 1944 is "unsatisfactory." And Wheeler named former President Hoover as the "strongest candidate" the GOP can nominate.

Republicans generally feel Willkie is an out-and-out candidate for the 1944 nomination. They expect him to enter primaries. He is rather unpopular in Capitol Hill, however, and will have his opponents in all parts of the country.

EXPERT OFFERS "SOLUTION" FOR COFFEE PROBLEM

Victor H. Ries, extension floriculturist at Ohio State university and an acquaintance of many Circleville and Pickaway county Garden club and farm organization members, offered a solution to the coffee shortage Thursday.

Raise some in your own back yard, Mr. Ries declared, but he warned that it will take 15 to 20 years for coffee trees to bear fruit. Mr. Ries made his statement after he had been asked by many persons concerning the advisability of buying seeds for coffee trees.

"I've said the Kentucky coffee tree, as it is known, usually is found in rather low ground. He said the seeds were used for making coffee west of the Alleghenies during the Revolutionary war. "If planted now," he said, "the coffee-bearing trees should come in handy for the next war." However, they do make nice shade trees, if you are not in a hurry, the state extension agent pointed out.

HIGH SALVAGE GOAL IS SET

County Asked To Produce 1,813 Tons Of Metal In Six Months

An important assignment was given to Circleville and Pickaway county residents Thursday by government scrap salvagers when quotas for iron and steel, tin cans and fats collections were set up for the first half of 1943.

Dan McClain, salvage chief, said that machinery is expected to be set up immediately for collection of cans and fats, the city service department and the district's grocers and meat dealers to cooperate in the respective programs.

Machinery is already established for collection of iron and steel with the township trustees under President Harry Rouse to play an ever-increasingly important role. A meeting will likely be held soon for all trustees during which plans for the collection will be definitely worked out.

McClain was informed that the county is expected to provide 1,813 tons of iron and steel prior to July 1, and that 84 tons of tin cans and 25,100 pounds of fats are also to be gathered for the government's war effort.

January produced 225 tons of metal, 20 tons of rubber and 20 tons of rags.

No tin can or fats collection was conducted because of lack of a collection organization. However, this is expected to be worked out in the next few days.

The county did a yeoman job in 1942, receiving a handsome pennant from the government for passing a high quota.

ENEMY ALIEN JAILED; EXPECTS HITLER RESCUE

CHICAGO, Feb. 11—The Federal Bureau of Investigation announced today the arrest of five German-born enemy aliens, one of them a worker in a war plant manufacturing parachute flares for the army and navy.

The war worker, who evidently had not been reading the progress of events on the Russian front recently, told the FBI defiantly:

"The German high command soon will come over here and take care of me."

Spencer J. Drayton, head of the Chicago office, said the man also admitted that when under the influence of liquor "thoughts run through my mind about wrecking trains by throwing switches."

The seizure of the five men, whose names were not disclosed, brought to 232 the number of enemy aliens apprehended by the FBI in Chicago since Pearl Harbor.

SMALL BUSINESS THREAT SEEN IN LONGER WEEK

EMERY AIRS OPINION

Chief Of Association Says New Order Imposes Serious Hardship

CHICAGO, Feb. 11—President Roosevelt's 48-hour work week will be a serious blow to small businessmen not engaged in war production in the 32 areas affected by the executive order, De Witt Emery, president of the National Small Business Men's Association, said today.

Striking hardest at the non-war production "little man" will be the work week provision making mandatory the payment of time and a half wages for the eight hours above the regular 40-hour week, Emery asserted.

"As I understand it," the association president declared, "any added expense for wages in war work can be charged to the government simply by adding the extra cost to the price of the article produced."

"But for the small man who has to work his staff at 48 hours a week and is selling at a ceiling price, this is just going to squeeze him, that's all."

Asked whether he thought all small business operators in the 32 critical labor shortage areas would be obliged to adopt the 48-hour week, whether in war work or not, Emery said:

"If you say 'obliged' from the standpoint of a penalty being incurred for failure to do so I would say 'no.' If you say 'obliged' from the standpoint that Mr. Roosevelt wants this done, I would say 'yes.'"

Emery expressed belief that it was yet "too early" to determine what could be done for the small business man who faced serious financial hardship because of the new order.

"Undoubtedly, however," he added, "there will be interpretations and rulings by Paul V. McNutt, the War Manpower Commissioner, which will change things from time to time."

"Our association for a long time has been seeking a 48-hour week to combat the labor shortage and to keep down the cost of the war and the cost of living. But we wanted a 48-hour week with straight time. There is no sense in paying a man a premium just for working eight more hours a week."

PEPPER URGES MOBILE FARM WORKER CORPS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—Sen. Pepper (D) Fla., today placed before the senate a bill creating a government agency to organize a mobile farm labor corps and authority to subsidize wages.

The measure, Pepper said, is necessary in order to make the "land army" plan of relieving the food shortage through increased production a success.

"The bill authorizes the secretary of agriculture, in cooperation with the War Manpower Commission, to organize the mobile farm corps to meet the emergency conditions on farms," Pepper explained.

"It also provides authority, wherever necessary, to advance money to meet the cost of obtaining workers and government payment of the difference between the prevailing wage of the community and that paid to the workers."

The measure also authorizes the secretary of agriculture to meet production goals by importing farm labor if he cannot obtain enough through the mobile corps. He also would be granted power to guarantee to defense workers, who return to the farm, deferment from the draft.

Two Tests Loom For Byrnes Plan

Bankhead Resolution And Miners Wage Demands Threaten Program

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—Two major early tests for the anti-inflation program of Economic Stabilization Director James F. Byrnes—one involving organized labor and the other the "farm bloc"—were foreseen today by congressional observers.

The first test may arise in the senate next week when Sen. Bankhead (D) Ala., proposes passage of a resolution overturning an Office of Price Administration ruling that farm benefits can be included in fixing ceiling prices.

Sen. George (D) Ga., predicted that the crucial test will arise on the demand of President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers for a $2 a day increase for coal miners.

Congressional reaction to the Byrnes anti-inflation plan generally was favorable.

Bankhead predicted that the senate will approve the resolution excluding several hundred million dollars of farm benefits from ceiling price calculations. The effect, OPA economists said, would be to force an upward revision in the top price of many farm commodities.

George declared that 85 to 90 percent of the people of the nation would back Byrnes in his effort to keep down cost of living, but said that the economic chief faces a major battle.

If Lewis wins his fight for a $2 a day increase for coal miners, thus upsetting the "little steel" formula, Byrnes will lose the battle, George said.

HIGH SALVAGE GOAL IS SET

County Asked To Produce 1,813 Tons Of Metal In Six Months

An important assignment was given to Circleville and Pickaway county residents Thursday by government scrap salvagers when quotas for iron and steel, tin cans and fats collections were set up for the first half of 1943.

Dan McClain, salvage chief, said that machinery is expected to be set up immediately for collection of cans and fats, the city service department and the district's grocers and meat dealers to cooperate in the respective programs.

Machinery is already established for collection of iron and steel with the township trustees under examination by Royal Air Force experts of one of the craft shot down over England.
Developed by the Germans to cope with American Flying Fortress bombers which have shot down a preponderant number of interceptors in flights over the Reich and occupied territory, the ME-210 is a fast, heavily armed ship capable of doing 370 to 380 miles an hour at an altitude of 18,000 feet.

It carries an exceptionally large supply of ammunition for long flights. In a recent fortress attack on the Reich, German fighters pursued an American fortress squadron across the North sea almost to the English coast.
The new Messerschmitt carries machine-gun blisters on both sides of the fuselage mounting 13-millimeter guns, equivalent to the 50-caliber batteries of the fortresses.
These guns can be fired by remote control from the cockpit which has been enlarged to carry the pilot, navigator and gunner.

Attacking power of the new German fighter has been increased by mounting two machine guns and two 20-millimeter guns in the nose.
It also carries 220-pound bombs, and wing brakes permit its use as a dive bomber.
The two-engine fighter, which is heavily armored, has a range of 1,000 miles. It is believed to be in full production and in action on all important fronts.

TOUGH MARINES INSPIRE FEAR IN JAPANESE

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 11—The marines on Guadalcanal lived up so well to their reputation for toughness and inspired so much fear in the enemy that the Japanese preferred to die in combat rather than surrender.

This was the story today of Lieut. Comdr. Walter W. Emerson, member of Admiral F. Halsey's staff who is home on leave. "The Japs feared the marines and would not surrender to them," he said, "but when the army moved in, prisoners were much easier to take."

AXIS TO BLEED AND BURN

No Vestige Of Enemy War Machine Will Be Left When Peace Comes

LONDON, Feb. 11—A solemn promise that the axis will "burn and bleed" under a world-wide offensive plan drafted in meticulous detail at Casablanca was given to the House of Commons by Prime Minister Winston Churchill today.

In the course of a long and detailed war review which brought frequent rounds of cheering from the house, Churchill epitomized the results of Casablanca as a decision to engage the forces of Germany, Italy and Japan on land and

These were the highlights of his encouraging address:
1—Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower will take over command of the British eighth army when it sweeps into Tunisia from Tripoli.

2—More than 500,000 American and British troops were landed in North Africa on November 7, 1942, in the greatest overseas military expedition in history.

3—"Progress is being made" against the U-boat menace and the allies "are more than holding their own." The joint Anglo-American fleets are now 1,250,000 tons larger than six months ago.

4—"The war will be prosecuted until 'no vestige of Nazi or Fascist power and no vestige of the Japanese war plotting machine' is left on the face of the earth."

5—As a result of Casablanca, the United Nations have a definite design of offensive warfare.

TEANECK, N. J., Feb. 11—"Drafted" by the navy department, Eero Koskinen, 16-year-old infantile paralysis victim, today was hard at work on experiments, the nature of which must remain a military secret.

Eero was chosen because his skill at building model planes is needed to help win the war. An eighth-term student at Teaneck high school, Eero was recommended to the navy by the school principal.

The boy came to the United States from Finland when he was 18 months old and was crippled by the disease at five.

ALBERT CONRAD RATION OFFICE PRAISED FOR NOW OPEN AT WORK IN NAVY COUNTY GARAGE

A second Atlanta, Perry township, resident received commendation this week for his part in the war effort when Ensign Albert A. Conrad who is serving in the U. S. Navy Bureau of Ordnance was honored "for splendid work in the navy's program."

The communication sent to his mother, Mrs. Alice Conrad, New Holland, did not state specifically what Conrad's work had been. Earlier in the week Lieutenant Lloyd George of Atlanta was praised in an English newspaper for helping to land safely an American Flying Fortress which had been hit nine times by cannon shells from German planes. Young George, 24, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. George of Perry township.

Conrad is a graduate of Perry township high school and the University of Cincinnati, being graduated in 1941 from the U. of C. college of engineering and commerce, department of civil engineering. Notice of recognition of his work was issued by Captain W. R. Van Auker of the bureau of ordnance.

LOCAL SCHOOLS TO RESUME OLD TIME SCHEDULE

Possibility that Circleville schools will resume the same hour schedule that prevailed before Eastern War Time was adopted looms following recommendation of a faculty committee to the board of education. The board meets Tuesday and will likely set the new hour schedule at that time.

ASHVILLE

Several of the local and nearby young men are headed out for Fort Hayes next Wednesday, the 17th, one of them told us yesterday. They are listed as Harold Myers, George Oday, Vernon Luckett, Victor Curry of Ashville; William Cummins, Walnut township; Maurice Murray, South Bloomfield. Obey orders and do what you are told to do by your officers in charge, a seasoned old veteran advised the boys while we were listing their names. Keep away and free from the Kitchen Police squad who do a lot of pot-peeling, he further told them and they all promised to be good and do their stuff best they could. And while talking soldier, it is just a little more than possible that our well known Atty. Guy Cline will be home for a short furlough before so very long. Too, somebody said he had passed his examination for some kind of a military office and it would be no surprise to see some gold bars sticking fast to his uniform at shoulder points. But we'll be finding out about this when and if he comes home on that furlough he hopes to soon get. He is stationed at Camp Lee, Virginia.

What has been known for years as the Hott Bakery store room on Long street, and which building along with dwelling was recently purchased by L. B. Dailey, is undergoing a general rearrangement, being fitted for a grocery and meat store. Carpenter Isaac Ramey and painter Charles Nicholson are the artists at work there making that store room shine as it never shone before.

Good old Abe Lincoln will be getting his birthday properly celebrated out at school Friday, the several grades having programs more or less extensive. The first and second grades will hold a real Valentine party on Friday afternoon. The third grade will have their Lincoln program in the morning session. The fifth and seventh will have their Lincoln programs in the afternoon.

Both banks, Citizen and Ashville, will be closed to the public all day Friday, so they told us yesterday.

The Hamilton township, Franklin county, basketball team is scheduled to be out at the school auditorium Friday evening to show our county champions to be and the fans here, how they do things up there.

The Ladies Aid society of the local Lutheran church held its monthly session at the church Wednesday with program and refreshments. An unusual number of visitors was present, they told us.

An unusual and unannounced blackout occurred here yesterday evening when the village was in darkness at intermittent periods for an hour or more, the first blackout section starting at about 7:30. Had it not been for "Aunt Hannah" in her first quarter phase, it would have been really black. Made several inquiries from the supposed knowing ones but without any luck in finding the cause.

HEART ATTACK FATAL TO CHARLES C. WEAVER

Charles C. Weaver, 64, Deer-creek township farmer, died Wednesday at 3 p. m. at his home, south of Williamsport. He had been seriously ill since Saturday, a heart attack being fatal.

Mr. Weaver was a native of Salt Creek township, born December 23, 1878, a son of John J. and Clara Hunt Weaver.

Survivors include his widow, Edith Fetherolf Weaver; an adopted daughter, Phyllis; two brothers, Clifton of Laurelville and Ira of Circleville, and a sister, Mrs. Dora Paxton of Circleville. Funeral will be Saturday at 2:30 p. m. at the C. E. Hill funeral home, Williamsport.

U-BOAT MENACE TAKES PRIORITY, COMMONS TOLD

Enemy Hope Of Averting Defeat Through Sinkings Declared Vain

accomplished its present mission of smashing or flanking the Mar-eth line, Churchill said:

"I have great confidence in him and regard him as one of the finest men I have ever met."

The United States, Churchill said, attaches great importance to the unity of command in the hands of one supreme commander.

"We willingly and freely accepted this position," Churchill said. "We shall loyally and faithfully act up to it on all occasions in every respect."

It was with a characteristic Churchill turn of phrase that the prime minister chose to make "burn and bleed" the battle cry of the United Nations against the axis.

"We have to make the enemy burn and bleed in every way it is physically and reasonably possible in the same way as he is being made to burn and bleed in Russia," Churchill declared.

The prime minister said that Britain and the United States have given the task of overcoming the German submarine menace first priority in all their plans.

"This was reaffirmed by our combined staffs at Casablanca," he said.

Clear Allied View

He told the house, filled to capacity and crowded with visitors, that Britain and the United States, formerly peaceful countries, now are warrior nations walking in fear of the Lord, but very heavily armed and with an increasingly clear view of their salvation.

The speech was punctuated by rousing cheers.

The galleries were jam-packed as the prime minister rose to deliver his survey of the war situation. Included among the prominent occupants of the ladies' gallery were Mrs. Neville Chamberlain, wife of the late prime minister, Mrs. Ivan Maisky, wife of the Soviet ambassador, and Mrs. Churchill.

In reference to the Nazi submarine warfare which has become increasingly menacing he declared: "Progress is being made. We are more than holding our own."

He reiterated that it was the British government's intention to keep figures on production and on losses a secret so as not to give information to the enemy.

Losses Overcome

"But in the last six months," he continued, "British and American and Canadian building has exceeded all the losses of the United Nations by over 1,250,000 tons. That is to say, our joint fleets are 1,250,000 tons bigger today than six months ago."

The American flow of shipping, he disclosed, is leaping upward with the passage of every month and the losses in the last two months have been the lowest for over a year.

"We had hardly any losses among our heavily escorted troop convoys," the prime minister said. "Of the 3,000,000 moved under protection of the British navy only 1,348 were killed, drowned or are missing."

At Casablanca, where he conferred with President Roosevelt and other Allied officials and military leaders, Churchill said, the importance of coming ever closer to grips with the enemy and intensifying the struggle outweighed a number of other considerations which ordinarily would be decisive in themselves.

Might Increases

"Britain and America," he continued, "are now possessed of very powerful and growing forces with great masses of munitions coming along."

"The problem is to bring these forces into action. We both have vast oceans to cross and for both of us there is the daring and complicated enterprise of landing on defended coasts and building up communications and supplies once the landing is made."

"It is because of this that U-boat warfare takes first place in our thoughts and there is no need to exaggerate the danger of U-boats."

"The British and American governments have given the task of overcoming U-boats first priority in all their plans, and this was reaffirmed most explicitly by the combined staffs at Casablanca."

"The losses we suffer at sea are very heavy and they hamper us, delay our operations and prevent us from coming into action at full strength. Thus they prolong the war."

Subs Destroyed

"The rate of killing U-boats has steadily improved from January to October, 1942. The sinkings, certain and probable, were the best of the war. From November to the present the rates have improved more than half as much again."

"At the same time the destructive power of U-boats has undergone a steady diminution."

If the present intense efforts are kept up by Britain and the United States, Churchill said, "and U-boat warfare continues to hold

HATCHET USER ON POLICEMAN OBJECT OF HUNT

Serious charges are expected to be filed in police headquarters Thursday against an unnamed man who is charged with swinging a hatchet at George Davis, special patrolman, shortly after midnight Wednesday after he had been placed under arrest.

Police Chief W. F. McCrady said that the man, believed to be an Indian driving a car which carried a Texas license, would likely be taken into custody sometime during the day. Efforts to find him Thursday morning were futile.

The special officer narrowly escaped serious injury when he threw his left arm over his head to protect himself when the man swung the hatchet at him. Arms of the two men came together, the hatchet falling to the sidewalk. The officer's assailant entered his car and drove away after the altercation, Davis copying the license number from the car.

McCrady said Davis, who was working alone, encountered the man on the street, saw he was intoxicated and, giving him "a break," told him to stay out of his automobile. The man insisted on driving his car and had entered it and turned on the lights when the officer placed him under arrest.

The man emerged from the car he swung the hatchet at the officer.

Davis, operating as a special policeman and not under bond, hesitated about shooting at the car, refraining from doing so because he believed an arrest could be made later.

first place in our thoughts and energies, I assure the house we shall be definitely better off as far as shipping is concerned by the end of 1943 than now."

Vain Enemy Hope

Then the prime minister declared:

"Let the enemy nurse his vain hopes of averting his doom by U-boat warfare. He cannot avert it but may delay it. But it is for us to shorten the delay by every conceivable effort we can make."

"Our inflexible insistence on unconditional surrender does not mean we shall stain our victorious arms by wrong and cruel treatment of the whole populations, but justice must be done and justice will be stern and implacable."

"No vestige of Nazi or Fascist power and no vestige of the Japanese war plotting machine will be left when the work is done, as done it certainly will be."

Here the house burst into uproarious cheers.

"We have now a complete plan of action which comprises the apportionment of forces as well as their direction and the weight of particular movements that are decided on. This plan we are going to carry out according to our ability during the next nine months before the end of which we shall certainly make efforts to meet again."

"For good or ill we know exactly that much we wish to do. We have the united and agreed advice of our experts behind it and there is nothing now to be done but to work out these schemes in detail and put them into operation."

key point on the Nazi defense line, the Russians wiped out several German units and destroyed a considerable amount of war material.

North of Kursk, around captured Ponyri, other large amounts of war material which the fleeing Nazis abandoned was recovered by the Russians. The Soviets continued to advance through this area in bitterly fought engagements.

Counter-Drives Fail

In the Kramatorsk area, 110 miles northwest of threatened Rostov, the Germans launched three desperate counter-attacks in an effort to stem the Soviet column pushing southwestward to completely engulf Rostov. The Nazi attempts were repelled and the Russians then advanced to occupy several more localities.

The high command reported its forces before the Caucasus gateway city of Rostov also continued to advance after overcoming stubborn German resistance.

Further new blows against the axis were expected in the southwest Pacific following defeat of the Japanese on Guadalcanal island in the southern Solomons. Now that the enemy has been cleared from the strategic island, it was believed that American army forces will enlarge Henderson field and use it as a base for an "island-by-island" assault on enemy bases to the north.

The nearest Japanese base to Guadalcanal is on New Georgia island, 180 miles to the northwest. Recent heavy bombing attacks were believed to have knocked out this stronghold.

MacArthur Advances

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's jungle fighters scored a six-mile advance in New Guinea in the Wau-Mubo area southeast of Lae. In the latest skirmish with the enemy, 125 dead were left on the field by the beaten Japanese.

In Tunisia the British eighth army was moving toward the fortified Mareth line. Gen. Harold R. L. G. Alexander, middle east commander, declared in Cairo that he was confident that Field Commander Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery would have no difficulty in outflanking enemy forces holding the Mareth line.

The allied job of massing troops and supplies for the all-out attack on the Tunisian east coast, held by German-Italian forces, continued without interruption. Fighting in the North African theatre was limited to light patrol action.

In Italy the seeds of revolt against Mussolini and the Fascist regime developed apace. A London report said that Hitler had rushed 40 divisions of troops into the territory of his ally to cope with a possible uprising.

The widespread allied offensives, and threats of new attacks have forced the German high command to spread thin its dwindling air-power.

50 Percent Held Back

Continued RAF and American bombings of Germany and occupied Europe have forced Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering to hold 50 percent of his fighter force in Europe. Another 20 percent has been shifted to the Mediterranean to meet the challenge of the allied air forces in North Africa.

This leaves less than a third of the Nazi air force available for the Russian campaign.

TEN ALIENS JAILED

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—Ten more German aliens have been seized in the greater New York area it was learned from the F.B.I. today. The arrests brought to 2,396 the total number of enemy nationals who have been interned by the government in this area alone.

RIBBON MILLS DRAW BIG FINE AS WAGE CHEAT

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 11—General Ribbon Mills, Inc., one of the largest manufacturers in the country of ribbons for decorative purposes, today had been fined $15,000 and ordered to reimburse 1500 women homeworkers $50,000 in back pay by U. S. District Court Judge J. Cullen Ganey.

The fine was said to be the stiffest ever imposed upon an employer for violating the Federal Wage Act of 1939. Among other charges, the firm, with main offices in New York City and principal manufacturing plant in Catawissa, Pa., was accused of "chiseling" housewives by paying them 15 cents an hour and permitting mothers to use the aid of children seven to eleven years of age.

Judge Ganey scored the company's policy as "medieval and disgraceful" and said he hoped to see the day when the government would haul the individuals responsible for such conditions into the court rather than their corporations.

Dewey, Taft Possibilities

GOP legislators look on Dewey and Taft as potentialities, only if Willkie and Bricker are removed from the picture. Dewey has declared himself out of the 1944 campaign but his critics say he could be drafted ala Roosevelt, if Bricker and Willkie beat each other to death. Similarly, Taft's chance depends on Bricker's elimination.

Green, Warren and the others are unproven. Most Republicans look on them as possibilities for second place on the GOP ticket.

Former President Hoover, however, occupies a different role. If he should enter the popular primaries and carry them against Bricker and Willkie, his chances of winning the nomination would be overwhelming.

The former president has emerged from retirement. He has taken an interest in all current public questions, expressed himself and usually presented his own plan of operation. He is acknowledged to be the best informed of all GOP leaders. He has a great following and he also has a great number of critics. His greatest handicap is accomplished its present mission of smashing or flanking the Mar-eth line, Churchill said:

U-BOAT MENACE TAKES PRIORITY, COMMONS TOLD

"I have great confidence in him and regard him as one of the finest men I have ever met."

The United States, Churchill said, attaches great importance to the unity of command in the hands of one supreme commander.

"We willingly and freely accepted this position," Churchill said. "We shall loyally and faithfully act up to it on all occasions in every respect."

It was with a characteristic Churchill turn of phrase that the prime minister chose to make "burn and bleed" the battle cry of the United Nations against the axis.

"We have to make the enemy burn and bleed in every way it is physically and reasonably possible in the same way as he is being made to burn and bleed in Russia," Churchill declared.

The prime minister said that Britain and the United States have given the task of overcoming the German submarine menace first priority in all their plans.

"This was reaffirmed by our combined staffs at Casablanca," he said.

Clear Allied View

He told the house, filled to capacity and crowded with visitors, that Britain and the United States, formerly peaceful countries, now are warrior nations walking in fear of the Lord, but very heavily armed and with an increasingly clear view of their salvation.

The speech was punctuated by rousing cheers.

The galleries were jam-packed as the prime minister rose to deliver his survey of the war situation. Included among the prominent occupants of the ladies' gallery were Mrs. Neville Chamberlain, wife of the late prime minister, Mrs. Ivan Maisky, wife of the Soviet ambassador, and Mrs. Churchill.

In reference to the Nazi submarine warfare which has become increasingly menacing he declared: "Progress is being made. We are more than holding our own."

He reiterated that it was the British government's intention to keep figures on production and on losses a secret so as not to give information to the enemy.

Losses Overcome

"But in the last six months," he continued, "British and American and Canadian building has exceeded all the losses of the United Nations by over 1,250,000 tons. That is to say, our joint fleets are 1,250,000 tons bigger today than six months ago."

The American flow of shipping, he disclosed, is leaping upward with the passage of every month and the losses in the last two months have been the lowest for over a year.

"We had hardly any losses among our heavily escorted troop convoys," the prime minister said. "Of the 3,000,000 moved under protection of the British navy only 1,348 were killed, drowned or are missing."

At Casablanca, where he conferred with President Roosevelt and other Allied officials and military leaders, Churchill said, the importance of coming ever closer to grips with the enemy and intensifying the struggle outweighed a number of other considerations which ordinarily would be decisive in themselves.

"Britain and America," he continued, "are now possessed of very powerful and growing forces with great masses of munitions coming along."

key point on the Nazi defense line, the Russians wiped out several German units and destroyed a considerable amount of war material.

North of Kursk, around captured Ponyri, other large amounts of war material which the fleeing Nazis abandoned was recovered by the Russians. The Soviets continued to advance through this area in bitterly fought engagements.

Counter-Drives Fail

In the Kratatorsk area, 110 miles northwest of threatened Rostov, the Germans launched three desperate counter-attacks in an effort to stem the Soviet column pushing southwestward to completely engulf Rostov. The Nazi attempts were repelled and the Russians then advanced to occupy several more localities.

The high command reported its forces before the Caucasus gateway city of Rostov also continued to advance after overcoming stubborn German resistance.

Further new blows against the axis were expected in the southwest Pacific following defeat of the Japanese on Guadalcanal island in the southern Solomons. Now that the enemy has been cleared from the strategic island, it was believed that American army forces will enlarge Henderson field and use it as a base for an "island-by-island" assault on enemy bases to the north.

The nearest Japanese base to Guadalcanal is on New Georgia island, 150 miles to the northwest. Recent heavy bombing attacks were believed to have knocked out this stronghold.

MacArthur Advances

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's jungle fighters scored a six-mile advance in New Guinea in the Wau-Mubo area southeast of Lae. In the latest skirmish with the enemy, 125 dead were left on the field by the beaten Japanese.

In Tunisia the British eighth army was moving toward the fortified Mareth line. Gen. Harold R. L. G. Alexander, middle east commander, declared in Cairo that he was confident that Field Commander Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery would have no difficulty in outflanking enemy forces holding the Mareth line.

The allied job of massing troops and supplies for the all-out attack on the Tunisian east coast, held by German-Italian forces, continued without interruption. Fighting in the North African theatre was limited to light patrol action.

In Italy the seeds of revolt against Mussolini and the Fascist regime developed apace. A London report said that Hitler had rushed 40 divisions of troops into the territory of his ally to cope with a possible uprising.

The widespread allied offensives, and threats of new attacks have forced the German high command to spread thin its dwindling airpower.

50 Percent Held Back

Continued RAF and American bombings of Germany and occupied Europe have forced Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering to hold 50 percent of his fighter force in Europe. Another 20 percent has been shifted to the Mediterranean to meet the challenge of the allied air forces in North Africa.

This leaves less than a third of the Nazi air force available for the Russian campaign.

TEN ALIENS JAILED

NEW YORK, Feb. 11 — Ten more German aliens have been seized in the greater New York area it was learned from the F.B.I. today. The arrests brought to 2,396 the total number of enemy nationals who have been interned by the government in this area alone.

RIBBON MILLS DRAW BIG FINE AS WAGE CHEAT

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 11 — General Ribbon Mills, Inc., one of the largest manufacturers in the country of ribbons for decorative purposes, today had been fined $15,000 and ordered to reimburse 1500 women homeworkers $50,000 in back pay by U. S. District Court Judge J. Cullen Gandy.

The fine was said to be the stiffest ever imposed upon an employer for violating the Federal Wage Act of 1939. Among other charges, the firm, with main offices in New York City and principal manufacturing plant in Cata-saqua, Pa., was accused of "chiseling" housewives by paying them 15 cents an hour and permitting mothers to use the aid of children seven to eleven years of age.

Judge Gandy scored the company's policy as "medieval and disgraceful" and said he hoped to see the day when the government would haul the individuals responsible for such conditions into the court rather than their corporations.

OLD FREIGHT CAR WINS MEDAL FOR PART IN WAR

CHICAGO, Feb. 11 — Old No. 64,150 wore a championship medal today for aiding the war effort.

Old No. 64,150 is a venerable box car of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois railroad and, according to Norman B. Collins of the treasury department war savings staff, was the first car in the country to have the slogan "Buy more War Bonds" emblazoned on its sides. The car has carried the slogan more than 22,230 miles through 36 states and three Canadian provinces.

Willkie and Bricker Seen as Favorites for Presidential Nomination

declare himself shortly. His state colleague, Sen. Taft, literally placed Bricker in the race some weeks ago by removing himself from the 1944 picture in favor of the governor. Bricker too must enter primaries to prove or disprove his strength.

Dewey, Taft Possibilities

GOP legislators look on Dewey and Taft as potentialities, only if Willkie and Bricker are removed from the picture. Dewey has declared himself out of the 1944 campaign but his critics say he could be drafted ala Roosevelt, if Bricker and Willkie beat each other to death. Similarly, Taft's chance depends on Bricker's elimination.

Green, Warren and the others are unproven. Most Republicans look on them as possibilities for second place on the GOP ticket.

Former President Hoover, however, occupies a different role. If he should enter the popular primaries and carry them against Bricker and Willkie, his chances of winning the nomination would be overwhelming.

The former president has emerged from retirement. He has taken an interest in all current public questions, expressed himself and usually presented his own plan of operation. He is acknowledged to be the best informed of all GOP leaders. He has a great following and he also has a great number of critics. His greatest handicap is

DERBY WILL BE RUN ON MAY 1, WINN DECLARES

Kentucky Event Will Be For Louisville Folk, And No Others

DOWNS MEET BOOKED

Matt Adheres To Eastman Hopes, He Says, On Travel Problem

CHICAGO, Feb. 11 — The historic Kentucky Derby, which it was feared would become a war casualty, definitely was back to day on the 1943 program of Churchill Downs.

Col. Matt J. Winn, Churchill president, who has conducted the last 41 of the 68 derbies, announced that the 69th running will be held this year as planned, Saturday, May 1.

Winn said the entire Churchill Downs meeting, and particularly the derby, would be run so as to interfere in no way with essential wartime activities and that every effort would be made to confine the attendance to residents of Louisville and nearby communities.

"The management of Churchill Downs," he said, "will not honor further requests for reserved or box seats from anyone not a resident of the Louisville area."

"The management of Churchill Downs has not made and will not make any requests for any sort of special transportation facilities into Louisville from the outside, and in fact spectators are discouraged from attending the derby this year from outside the Louisville area."

Eastman Step Viewed

Col. Winn referred to the suggestion of Defense Transportation Director Joseph B. Eastman that the derby be cancelled this year because of the urgent necessity of restricting distance traveling for the purpose of attending sports events.

He agreed that such restrictions are essential and promised the "fullest cooperation" of Churchill Downs in their observance.

"The operation of the Churchill Downs meeting," he said, will be done within the wording and intent of the program of the ODT.

Churchill Downs is adequately served for Louisville residents by regular street railway and bus systems, and is convenient for attendance without conflicting with restrictions on wartime transportation.

"The scheduling of races will be worked out to avoid conflict with peak hours of other local transportation."

"The annual running of the Kentucky Derby also will be handled strictly within these restrictions and in no way interfere with essential wartime activities."

In normal years, the derby draws from 80,000 to 100,000 persons, with many of the thousands arriving by special trains and automobiles from all sections of the country.

TWO BIG CAGE MEETS BOOKED ON NYC COURT

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—Dates for two basketball tournaments that will give Madison Square Garden two weeks of court fare were announced today by Jack Coffey, chairman of the Intercollegiate Basketball association and Harold Olsen, of Ohio State, NCAA basketball chairman.

The first quarter-finals of the invitation tournament sponsored by the Intercollegiate association will go to the garden floor March 18; the second quarter-finals March 22; the semi-finals March 27, and the finals, March 29.

The eastern regional NCAA playoffs will be held March 25 and 26, and the championship finals, March 30.

MR. BEAU JACK DOES O. K. FOR YOUNG FIGHTER

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—Everybody was sitting around one night recently putting the rap on any one who might come to mind without being present to defend himself, when the suggestion was made that Beau Jack wouldn't last long as lightweight champion and wouldn't make much money out of the title. Maybe so, but I'd like to ask now on second thought who is going to whip him and what does he have to do to be regarded as a money-maker?

He seems to be getting better and better as he goes along and in the process he isn't exactly pauperizing himself.

The little black man from down "Jo-gia" way has answered the question as to whether he can fight by doing it with his fists. If you ask now who has he whipped, all he has to say is that he has taken everything they have given him. No man can do more than that.

As for money, he can answer the doubt in that department by pointing to the fact that he drew $70,000 with Fritzie Zivic last Friday night and undoubtedly will do that well again on March 5, when they encounter each other in the 12-round re-match announced yesterday.

If that don't put him in the money, then I'd like to know what money is in round numbers. The way he's going he will be able to supply those pigs on the pig ranch he plans to buy nothing less than velvet beds and silk coverlets. Fancy pork chops!

GESTRING WILL GIVE UP TANK TO TAKE HUBBY

PALO ALTO, Cal., Feb. 11—Having reached the ripe old age of 20, blonde and curvaceous Marjorie Gestring, once holder of so many diving championships she scarcely knew what to do with them, today decided that there are more serious things in life than diving.

Marjorie is going to get married.

She announced her engagement to Edward Harrison Carter, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn H. Carter, formerly of South Bend, Ind., but now of Los Angeles.

The former Olympic games champion and holder of the national women's 10-foot board title, is now a student of law at Stanford university, and finds that diving and studying for the bar do not mix easily.

"I do some exhibition diving at soldiers' camps and such," she said. "But since I've retired from the active field, I really don't give it much of a thought any more."

In fact, the serious young lady gave more thought to her fiancé. "We were sweethearts in Los Angeles high school—well, I guess we still are. We will be married March 25 in the St. James church at Los Angeles."

Carter is at present a senior at the University of California at Los Angeles and will graduate in June. Incidentally, Helen Orlenkovich of San Francisco, who dethroned Marjorie to win the national springboard title in 1939, is getting married, too.

She will wed Ensign Robert Drew Morgan, 27, of the navy air corps, San Diego, February 13.

PHIL DEAL OFF

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 11—Unless National league officials change their position, it was learned today, the deal whereby a syndicate of two New Yorkers and a Philadelphian would purchase the Phils is definitely off. The syndicate is composed of Navy Lieutenant W. Potter Wear, son of the late Joseph W. Wear, former president of the U. S. lawn tennis association; Captain Bert Walker, U. S. army, son of the Walker golf cup donor, and William D. Cox, New York lumber broker and president of piling associates.

BIG TEST FOR HOOSIER STAR COMES FEB. 20

By John Cashman

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—The track trio who blistered the Madison Square Garden boards in the Millrose mile last Saturday night all he has to say is that he has taken everything they have given him. No man can do more than that.

This will be the first start for the three in the Baxter mile, oldest of the indoor mile fixtures, and will feature some fancy footwork. Dodds is famous as a terrific pressure runner, Dixon as a man who can hang on even when the pace is white-hot, and Mitchell is a packet of dynamite who explodes in a thunderbolt last-lap finish.

Just as Dixon was sent out to trail Dodds, then overcame his lead, only to find Mitchell flashing past for the Wanamaker victory, so might Jim Rafferty overcome all three for the Baxter cup. Rafferty, running in the Millrose Saturday under New York A. C. colors, was forced by the crowd to field to run a faster first quarter than he had planned, and was unexpectedly out-distanced the rest of the way. In the Baxter, which will see only five starters, he will run a Rafferty-timed mile.

The rest of the field will no doubt have to trail Dodds up to the three-quarters mark, as he sets a notoriously killing pace. As a matter of fact, Dodds set the fastest three-quarter time ever recorded for the boards — 3:03.7, better than Glenn Cunningham on the night he ran his fastest mile.

The Baxter is Mitchell's real test. He has himself admitted that he is an in-and-out, cold one night and hot the next. If he can again display the magnificent timing that marked the Millrose race, he will be one of track's greatest attractions.

HARD HIT BY WAR

CINCINNATI, — The University of Cincinnati's directory of the board of directors and faculty has 80 pages and only ten of them do not carry the footnote "Absent in U. S. service." A total of 190 names of persons on war leave was noted by a university spokesman in announcing the new directory for 1942-43. Since the booklet was printed, others have left for service in the army, navy and marines, it was said.

CAPITAL COURT TEAM THUMPED BY MUSKINGUM

By International News Service

Ohio was without an undefeated basketball team today, as Capital University's first defeat of the season was chalked up in favor of Muskingum University.

The Muskies upset the Lutherans at New Concord last night by a 70 to 64 score, to give Toledo University, with four league wins and no defeats, the leadership in the Ohio Conference cage race.

Muskingum won the game from the foul line, counting of 12 of 21 free tries to Capital's six in nine chances. Each team scored 20 field goals.

Muskingum's center, Dave McDowell, paced the winners with 30 points on 10 field goals and 10 free throws. Cap Guard Fred Bernhorst, son of the Lutheran's coach, led the losers with 23 points on 11 field goals and one free throw.

Capital moved into the lead at the beginning of the game on Bernhorst's two field goals but the Muskies moved in to take a 10 to 8 lead and retain it the rest of the way. Muskingum led at the half, 42 to 29.

The loss was Capital's first in 11 games against all opposition and its initial conference defeat in nine starts. Muskingum has won eight in 12 games and has four conference victories against one defeat.

In other Ohio games last night, Toledo University recorded a 50 to 34 victory over Cincinnati while its "B" squad took Toledo Naval Training Station cagers to town by a 62 to 41 count. Defiance University defeated Detroit Tech, 41 to 38.

SALEM QUINTET TO INVADE CAC COURT FRIDAY

Cincinnati high Tigers will take on one of Ross county's fastest class B teams Friday evening when the Salem township quintet invades the C.A.C. court.

Coach Roy Black, whose boys are still seeking their first victory of the year, has been informed that

Salem is fast and clever with a good season's record back of it.

Another big game is on the Friday night schedule, Kingston invading Pickaway township to test the Pirate winning streak. The Kingston team lost to Pickaway earlier in the season.

Pickaway's streak has now moved 12 games.

This is the last week for county games, the tournament starting next week.

He seems to be getting better and better as he goes along and in the process he isn't exactly pauperizing himself.

The little black man from down "Jo-gia" way has answered the question as to whether he can fight by doing it with his fists. If you ask now who has he whipped, all he has to say is that he has taken everything they have given him. No man can do more than that.

As for money, he can answer the doubt in that department by pointing to the fact that he drew $70,000 with Fritz Zivic last Friday night and undoubtedly will do that well again on March 5, when they encounter each other in the 12-round re-match announced yesterday.

If that don't put him in the money, then I'd like to know what money is in round numbers. The way he's going he will be able to supply those pigs on the pig ranch he plans to buy nothing less than velvet beds and silk coverlets. Fancy pork chops!

GESTRING WILL GIVE UP TANK TO TAKE HUBBY

PALO ALTO, Cal., Feb. 11—Having reached the ripe old age of 20, blonde and curvaceous Marjorie Gestring, once holder of so many diving championships she scarcely knew what to do with them, today decided that there are more serious things in life than diving.

Marjorie is going to get married.

She announced her engagement to Edward Harrison Carter, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn H. Carter, formerly of South Bend, Ind., but now of Los Angeles.

The former Olympic games champion and holder of the national women's 10-foot board title, is now a student of law at Stanford university, and finds that diving and studying for the bar do not mix easily.

"I do some exhibition diving at soldiers' camps and such," she said. "But since I've retired from the active field, I really don't give it much of a thought any more."

In fact, the serious young lady gave more thought to her fiancé.

"We were sweethearts in Los Angeles high school—well, I guess we still are. We will be married March 25 in the St. James church at Los Angeles."

Carter is at present a senior at the University of California at Los Angeles and will graduate in June. Incidentally, Helen Crienkovich of San Francisco, who dethroned Marjorie to win the national springboard title in 1939, is getting married, too.

She will wed Ensign Robert Drew Morgan, 27, of the navy air corps, San Diego, February 13.

PHIL DEAL OFF

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 11—Unless National league officials change their position, it was learned today, the deal whereby a syndicate of two New Yorkers and a Philadelphian would purchase the Phils is definitely off.

The syndicate is composed of Navy Lieutenant W. Potter Wear, son of the late Joseph W. Wear, former president of the U. S. lawn tennis association; Captain Bert Walker, U. S. army, son of the Walker golf cup donor, and William D. Cox, New York lumber broker and president of piling associates.

BIG TEST FOR HOOSIER STAR COMES FEB. 20

By John Cashman
NEW YORK, Feb. 11—The track trio who blistered the Madison Square Garden boards in the Millrose mile last Saturday night—Earl Mitchell, Gil Dodds and Frank Dixon—will attempt to smash the 4:08.6 mark set by the victorious Mitchell when they meet again at the garden in the New York A. C. games February 20.

This will be the first start for the three in the Baxter mile, oldest of the indoor mile fixtures, and will feature some fancy footwork. Dodds is famous as a terrific pressure runner, Dixon as a man who can hang on even when the pace is white-hot, and Mitchell is a packet of dynamite who explodes in a thunderbolt last-lap finish.

Just as Dixon was sent out to trail Dodds, then overcame his lead, only to find Mitchell flashing past for the Wanamaker victory, so might Jim Rafferty overtake all three for the Baxter cup. Rafferty, running in the Millrose Saturday under New York A. C. colors, was forced by the crowded field to run a faster first quarter than he had planned, and was unexpectedly out-distanced the rest of the way. In the Baxter, which will see only five starters, he will run a Rafferty-timed mile.

The rest of the field will no doubt have to trail Dodds up to the three-quarters mark, as he sets a notoriously killing pace. As a matter of fact, Dodds set the fastest three-quarter time ever recorded for the boards—3:03.7, better than Glenn Cunningham on the night he ran his fastest mile.

The Baxter is Mitchell's real test. He has himself admitted that he is an in-and-out, cold one night and hot the next. If he can again display the magnificent timing that marked the Millrose race, he will be one of track's greatest attractions.

CINCINNATI, — The University of Cincinnati's directory of the board of directors and faculty has 80 pages and only ten of them do not carry the footnote "Absent in U. S. service." Since the booklet was printed, others have left for service in the army, navy and marines, it was said.

CAPITAL COURT TEAM THUMPED BY MUSKINGUM

By International News Service
Ohio was without an undefeated basketball team today, as Capital University's first defeat of the season was chalked up in favor of Muskingum University.

The Muskies upset the Lutherans at New Concord last night by a 70 to 64 score, to give Toledo University, with four league wins and no defeats, the leadership in the Ohio Conference cage race.

Muskingum won the game from the foul line, counting of 12 of 21 free tries to Capital's six in nine chances. Each team scored 20 field goals.

Muskingum's center, Dave McDowell, paced the winners with 30 points on 10 field goals and 10 free throws. Cap Guard Fred Bernlohr, son of the Lutheran's coach, led the losers with 23 points on 11 field goals and one free throw.

Capital moved into the lead at the beginning of the game on Bernlohr's two field goals but the Muskies moved in to take a 10 to 8 lead and retain it the rest of the

Coach Roy Black, whose boys are still seeking their first victory of the year, has been informed that

Salem is fast and clever with a good season's record back of it. Another big game is on the Friday night schedule, Kingston invading Pickaway township to test the Pirate winning streak. The Kingston team lost to Pickaway earlier in the season.

Pickaway's streak has now moved 12 games.

RUMI TAX PLAN

THE present argument about income taxes seems likely to continue at high pitch for some time. Meanwhile the government's rule that the first quarterly installment, at least, must be paid now on the familiar basis of last year's income, seems reasonable. That gives everybody a chance to continue the argument while a new plan can be worked out, fitting the higher level of incomes and the larger needs of mounting war debt.

The most interesting proposal now under discussion is the pay-as-you-go plan. To make a clean and simple job of it, such a plan would start as of the present calendar year, ignoring the usual taxpayer's debt to the government on the basis of the previous year's income.

Such procedure might seem as if the government were making a clean gift to the taxpayer of a year's taxes. But the advocates insist that in the vast majority of cases it would make no real difference. For the average taxpayer, in paying this year's taxes this year instead of paying last year's taxes this year, would be paying the government about as usual. And the government would immediately be better off by getting this year's big taxes now, instead of getting last year's smaller taxes now. From then on, income taxes would be paid currently, and apparently nothing would be lost by either government or taxpayer.

Such a prospect seems to please many taxpayers, and if there is any real joker in it the joker has not been revealed. The budgeting of incomes to meet taxes, apparently, could proceed in an orderly way, and unthrifty taxpayers would be drawn immediately into a convenient system of meeting their federal tax payments almost like current bills. Irregularities would be straightened out at the end of the year in the case of people whose incomes vary through the year.

This pay-as-you-go system, known as the Rumi plan, was worked out by the man whose name it bears, who is chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. It might benefit some taxpayers unduly at the start, but presumably would work evenly from then on.

FOR every Serb, Kosovo, "the field of blackbirds," is a word of bitter memory. There in 1889 a Turkish army crushed the Serbs, and reduced their country to a servitude that lasted 500 years.

The Germans are not likely to share the Serbian fate, however devoutly many may wish it. Yet any German who has counted on victory in this war may well feel a pang as bitter as any Serb's when he thinks of Stalingrad.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND By DREW PEARSON

PUZZLE FOR ICKES

WASHINGTON — Secretary of the Interior Ickes has a U. S. senator squatting on government land and doesn't quite know what to do about him. The squatter is Montana's Senator Burton K. Wheeler, who has a house on Lake MacDonald in the Glacier National Park.

The house was acquired before it was against the law for a member of Congress to own a house at Lake MacDonald. That was in 1916 when Wheeler was U. S. District Attorney in Montana and when part of the Lake MacDonald area was under the Forestry Service.

Later Wheeler was elected to the Senate, and all of the Lake MacDonald area was made part of Glacier National Park. The year after Wheeler's election, 1924, he himself raised the point that he could not legally sign a permit to keep his house in the national park.

This is based upon Title 41 Section 21 of the U. S. Code which prohibits a contract with the United States by which a member of Congress would share or profit.

Wheeler, however, was allowed to retain his house in the national park without signing a permit. He was a squatter on government surffiance. This continued for 17 years until September, 1941, when the Wheeler cottage was damaged by fire and he asked permission to rebuild.

The Senator took the matter up with the then Undersecretary of the Interior Jack Dempsey, in charge of national parks, who authorized the remodeling job, and since it was illegal for Wheeler to sign a remodeling permit, Dempsey suggested that it might be signed by Mrs. Wheeler.

Accordingly Mrs. Wheeler on October 8 last year made an oral request for such a permit. However, Assistant Secretary of Interior Burlew ruled that it would be contrary to law for any member of the Senator's family to sign a permit. This decision was taken just before Christmas and there the matter now stands. No one knows what the next move will be, whether Wheeler will continue to keep his Summer place, and if so, how he can rebuild it without a permit.

SOMERVELL'S PENTAGON

Lt. Gen. B. B. Somervell, efficient Chief of the Services of Supply, accompanied President Roosevelt to Casablanca. While there, he peppered his subordinates in Washington with cables ordering this, that and the other thing to reinforce Gen. Eisenhower's army.

Gen. Somervell has become famous for building army camps, jacking up the Quartermaster Corps, putting new life in the Ordnance Department. But probably his greatest pride and joy is the Pentagon Building, largest office building in the world, where people who have worked there weeks still get lost, where legend has it that a Western Union messenger boy spent so long in its labyrinth that he came out a lieutenant colonel.

So after General Somervell had sent reams of cables ordering all sorts of supplies, his weary chief of staff, Maj. Gen. W. D. Styer, cabled him:

"Why not ship Pentagon?"

Exposure to Cold May Cause Shoulder Pains of Bursitis

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

EIGHTY per cent of painful shoulders are due to bursitis. Some are due to arthritis and some to rupture of the tendon or sheath of a muscle in the shoulder region. A very few are due to what is known as the scalenus anticus syndrome. As far as I know, there is no such thing as neuritis of the shoulder; and when anyone makes this diagnosis, he usually is making a wrong diagnosis.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

A bursa is a kind of shock absorber and most joints have bursae around them. A bursa is actually a membrane which looks like a small deflated balloon and is filled with a fluid which does the shock absorbing. The subdeltoid bursa is called that because it is under the deltoid muscle, which is the large muscle on top of the shoulder. It is located between that muscle and the top of the bone of the upper arm, the humerus. When it becomes inflamed, not only does the shock-absorbing function stop, but pain intervenes.

The most frequent cause of inflammation of the subdeltoid bursa is irritation from use on exposure to cold—what might be called "use injury."

Soldiers get it from carrying a gun; people who work in cramped positions at machines often get it. I know of one case of a woman who drove her car leaning on her arm on the open window, which put it in a cramped position, and this in addition to the cold wind that was blowing fixed her up.

The next most frequent cause is focal infection from infected teeth, tonsils or other tissue. Occasionally certain nutritional changes are operative, especially in those cases in which a bursa becomes filled with chalky or calcium deposits. Pain, tenderness and limitation of motion are the main symptoms and they come on quite suddenly. Most cases get well automatically without treatment in from a week to two or three months. Some of them go over into a chronic stage and in many of these cases the bursa is seen to

Treatment of an acute case is mostly by rest and splinting of the arm; or exposure to the x-ray often causes resolution. If these measures do not operate, the bursa can be injected hypodermically with procaine and in resistant cases the entire bursa can be removed surgically.

Rupture of Muscles

Another fairly frequent cause of a painful shoulder is a rupture of one of the muscles that are inserted in or around the joint. This is usually caused by a sudden, unfamiliar movement which catches the muscle in a taut or twisted position and ruptures the sheath. These cases also get well by simple measures in most instances.

A very peculiar condition which causes painful shoulder is a wrong insertion of the scalenus anticus muscle, which is one of the muscles in the neck. When it is inserted in a wrong position it presses on the nerves which supply the shoulder and arm, and this produces recurrent attacks of pain. This is one of the easiest forms of recurrent and long-drawn-out pain to cure, as it can be relieved by operation under local anesthesia.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

W. T.—What is the meaning of mitral organic heart disease? Could it be cured in time by taking it easy, with good food, plenty of rest and no hard work?

Answer: Mitral heart disease is an inflammation of the mitral valves of the heart. The seriousness of the condition is determined by the amount of inflammation and how much deformity is left in the valve. Most cases, however, are not very serious and patients live to a quite old age. It is impossible to prevent it by diet, or by any other means.

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS KAY STEVENS, personable young vice president of McClure's department store in New York City, suddenly marries JONATHAN (JAKE) KERR, talented pianist, who has refused all offers to turn professional. They are married when Jake buries after her while she is on a business trip to California with DAVID BANNING, JR., 35-year-old president of the concern, who himself had entertained hopes that Kay would marry him. Kay's best friend in the city is HENRIETTA PAGE, who lives in Greenwich Village and is in much the same care-free crowd as Jake.

YESTERDAY: After going out to one party alone while Kay is convalescing, Jake reveals the next night that he is going out again.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

"I'M AFRAID I'll have to go out tonight," Jake told Kay. "I got mixed up in a party last night, promised to go to a prize fight with a bunch who were at the Blakes. Jack Gardner has to fly to Washington this afternoon and they were a man shy. Good ring-side seats. It sounded like fun then. Now I'm sorry I said I'd go, but you know how it is," he ended up lamely.

"Of course, go ahead. It ought to be a good fight," Kay said good naturedly. David's shrewd eyes mustn't spot her disappointment.

David spoke up quickly. "I'd love to take your place here with Kay, if she's sure she wants me."

Jake's "Sure she does," and Kay's "Of course I do," were spoken at the same moment.

Jake's going out and David's staying for dinner became a regular habit. Kay never got quite used to it. But she understood Jake. He loved her as much as ever. She was sure of that. But he also loved excitement, activity. This craving for some release for his energy probably had its roots in the fact that the useless way he chose to live his life didn't bring him any real satisfaction.

She went back to work at the store the end of February. Against the doctor's orders, but Kay felt that she had to get back, to anchor her mind on concrete problems that had no direct connection with her. She was still very thin, not strong.

But there were several factors that weighed more heavily with her than the state of her health. She didn't feel she was actually sick enough to justify the store's paying her salary if she stayed home. And she needed the money. It cost her more to live now that she was married. All of her expenses had gone up. Before she was taken sick, there had been so much entertaining, night clubs, clothes, theater tickets. She and Jake never discussed money. She knew his income was just sufficient to pay his rent, his clothes, his spending money. She paid for everything else. Gladly. A condition that she accepted when she married Jake. She didn't begrudge it. But she had to have her monthly pay check or they would be in a fix.

And she wanted to get away from the atmosphere of the apartment. Jake's sleeping all morning, Anna's scowling blackly at his door every time she peeped by. Then when Jake woke up, he usually had a headache. In the afternoon he'd go down to his place, staying there until 5 or 6 o'clock. He'd come home just in time to dress and go out. He felt fine then. But Kay was never with him. He went out mostly with Kay's friends. He had said one day, half joking, half in earnest:

"I'm beginning to think your friends have turned Jake's head."

"What makes you say that?"

"We never see him any more. Stews and studio parties can't compete with El Morocco and penthouses."

"What do you think I ought to do about it?" Kay was relieved that the matter was out in the open. It had her worried.

"Nothing. Jake's head won't turn. It's something new for him and it's bound to have a certain fascination, glamor. His head may be turned easily, but it's on solid enough so that he won't lose it. Just give him a little time."

Kay was reassured. He understood Jake better in some ways than Kay did. Kay just loved him—more than ever.

She wished she could start going out at nights with Jake, but the doctor's warning had been urgent. "You've no business to be going back to the store at all," he had said. "And if you start burning the candle at both ends the way you did before, you'll be sick in bed again, and it might not be so easy for you a second time."

And she found that she didn't have much urge to go. Working all day exhausted her energy. She and Jake went to the theater or a concert once a week, dining out alone together beforehand. Kay looked forward to that night all week. They sometimes went down to Het's on Friday nights. Kay had grown very fond of that crowd, but Jake wasn't so keen about going down there any more. They kidded him unmercifully.

"Where's your top hat . . . what, no dinner jacket? . . . Jake's slumming tonight . . . waiter, some champagne and caviar . . . we won't ask Jake to play tonight, he's too tired . . ." and so on. Done in good spirit. But they were hurt.

Kay hadn't heard Jake play for weeks. One night down at Het's she coaxed him to go. He went to the piano unwillingly, only to please her. He played half an hour or so, then he got up and walked away from the piano. Nobody urged him to go on. It was obvious his heart wasn't in it.

Kay took Het aside. "Jake was terrible tonight, wasn't he? He seemed to be banging everything."

"He's just nervous, I should say, maybe a little tired. He always has hated to play unless he just felt like it."

Het could be counted on for a plausible excuse for everything.

Jake did. And Kay felt that Het was reluctant to discuss Jake with her. They probably all felt that this change in him was her fault. But she hadn't tried to change him. She had never even mentioned his lack of ambition.

He lived the same life now that he had always lived. Except that he had more of the luxuries and extravagances that money can buy.

Money. Money. That was it. Money. Money. Before he married her he couldn't afford to indulge in all those stupid, time-wasting parties that were draining his energy and softening his spirit. Jake used to be carefree, happy-go-lucky, immersed in his work. The recreation had been a side issue. Now, through her, and yet no fault of hers, it had become the main interest. It wasn't much of a life for either of them.

"Het, do you think I'm bad for Jake?" she asked. She had to know. And Het was frank enough to tell her.

Het hesitated a moment, absent-mindedly smoothed her already flawlessly smooth yellow hair. "That's a hard question to answer, I wish you hadn't asked me." She was thinking as she spoke, choosing her words carefully.

"I think it's too bad that you are so successful," she went on. "For several reasons. It might wake Jake up to discover that it was up to him to be the head of the family. As it is, you're so far ahead of Jake that he's shy away from any attempt to assume responsibility. Also, you and your friends are too flush."

"Maybe I'd better ask David to cut my salary," Kay said ruefully. "It would take a major operation if you're looking for a real cure," Het shrewdly remarked.

"I'd do anything for Jake," Kay said with tears in her eyes.

"I know you would. Don't worry about it. One of these days Jake will start playing again and then everything will be all right."

"Hasn't he been playing the piano?" Kay asked in surprise.

"No, that was the trouble with him tonight. I can always tell. He's been like this before. He'll snap out of it," Het said with forced optimism.

Kay could hardly believe that Jake wasn't doing any work. If he wasn't working, what did he do in the afternoons when she thought he was down at his apartment?

She had a key for his place. She'd never had much occasion to use it. But the next afternoon, about 3:30 o'clock, she took a taxi downtown. She supposed it was spying. She felt mean about it. But she didn't want to ask Jake questions, and she felt she had to know.

If she found him there, hard at work, all well and good. It was the first spring-like day. She could easily say she'd felt restless, bored with the store, and wanted to walk home with him. Her feeling of suspense rose as she neared his address. Would he be there or wouldn't he?

Today's Horoscope

By nature those who have birthdays today are calm and serene, yet circumstances can stir them to intense excitement. They should try to overcome a tendency to be lackadaisical in their work, as well as surlily and sarcastic toward others. They should be more cheerful and charitable and they will be happy. Ideas that occur to them in the wee sma' hours of this their birthdays should succeed, if developed proficiently! Take hold of an opportunity that someone else has neglected through indifference, they are advised. There is money to be earned that way. They should not ask for a favor early in the evening this day, or they may be refused.

Heard the army men talk at the Jaycee dinner. Quite a gathering. A good organization, the Junior Chamber of Commerce, an organization of young men with plenty of energy and entirely unaware of the fact that certain things can not be done. So, organizations of that kind being unaware of certain impossibilities go right ahead and accomplish them. That's how civilization progresses. Except for accomplishment of the impossible this would be a heck of a world today. Railroads, steamboats, the telephone, telegraph and radio, the automobile, airplanes, home refrigerators all were impossible at one time.

Wonder just how many impossible things will be put to our advantage after this war becomes history? Already much is hinted and appears unbelievable. The next generation will be wondering how we ever got along in such primitive times as these. Just like we wonder how our ancestors ever managed to make it.

There goes George Goodchild who is such a fine daddy to all those kids out at the Children's Home. Quite a session in which many wordy ills were cured in a quarter hour. But not permanently as I found on return to the plant and a glance at the world news as it came in. Everyone going on as before, and none too smoothly, either.

RUMUL TAX PLAN

THE present argument about income taxes seems likely to continue at high pitch for some time. Meanwhile the government's rule that the first quarterly installment, at least, must be paid now on the familiar basis of last year's income, seems reasonable. That gives everybody a chance to continue the argument while a new plan can be worked out, fitting the higher level of incomes and the larger needs of mounting war debt.

The most interesting proposal now under discussion is the pay-as-you-go plan. To make a clean and simple job of it, such a plan would start as of the present calendar year, ignoring the usual taxpayer's debt to the government on the basis of the previous year's income.

Such procedure might seem as if the government were making a clean gift to the taxpayer of a year's taxes. But the advocates insist that in the vast majority of cases it would make no real difference. For the average taxpayer, in paying this year's taxes this year instead of paying last year's taxes this year, would be paying the government about as usual. And the government would immediately be better off by getting this year's big taxes now, instead of getting last year's smaller taxes now. From then on, income taxes would be paid currently, and apparently nothing would be lost by either government or taxpayer.

Such a prospect seems to please many taxpayers, and if there is any real joker in it the joker has not been revealed. The budgeting of incomes to meet taxes, apparently, could proceed in an orderly way, and unthrifty taxpayers would be drawn immediately into a convenient system of meeting their federal tax payments almost like current bills. Irregularities would be straightened out at the end of the year in the case of people whose incomes vary through the year.

This pay-as-you-go system, known as the Rumul plan, was worked out by the man whose name it bears, who is chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. It might benefit some taxpayers unduly at the start, but presumably would work evenly from then on.

GERMANY'S KOSOVO

FOR every Serb, Kosovo, "the field of blackbirds," is a word of bitter memory. There in 1889 a Turkish army crushed the Serbs, and reduced their country to a servitude that lasted 500 years.

The Germans are not likely to share the Serbian fate, however devoutly many may wish it. Yet any German who has counted on victory in this war may well feel a pang as bitter as any Serb's when he thinks of Stalingrad.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Secretary of the Interior Ickes has a U. S. senator squatting on government land and doesn't quite know what to do about him. The squatter is Montana's Senator Burton K. Wheeler, who has a house on Lake MacDonald in the Glacier National Park.

The house was acquired before it was against the law for a member of Congress to own a house at Lake MacDonald. That was in 1916 when Wheeler was U. S. District Attorney in Montana and when part of the Lake MacDonald area was under the Forestry Service.

Later Wheeler was elected to the Senate, and all of the Lake MacDonald area was made part of Glacier National Park. The year after Wheeler's election, 1924, he himself raised the point that he could not legally sign a permit to keep his house in the national park.

This is based upon Title 41 Section 21 of the U. S. Code which prohibits a contract with the United States by which a member of Congress would share or profit.

Wheeler, however, was allowed to retain his house in the national park without signing a permit. He was a squatter on government sufferance. This continued for 17 years until September, 1941, when the Wheeler cottage was damaged by fire and he asked permission to rebuild.

The Senator took the matter up with the then Undersecretary of the Interior Jack Dempsey, in charge of national parks, who authorized the remodeling job, and since it was illegal for Wheeler to sign a remodeling permit, Dempsey suggested that it might be signed by Mrs. Wheeler.

Accordingly Mrs. Wheeler on October 8 last year made an oral request for such a permit. However, Assistant Secretary of Interior Burlew ruled that it would be contrary to law for any member of the Senator's family to sign a permit. This decision was taken just before Christmas and there the matter now stands. No one knows what the next move will be, whether Wheeler will continue to keep his Summer place, and if so, how he can rebuild it without a permit.

SOMERVELL'S PENTAGON

Lt. Gen. B. B. Somervell, efficient Chief of the Services of Supply, accompanied President Roosevelt to Casablanca. While there, he peppered his subordinates in Washington with cables ordering this, that and the other thing to reinforce Gen. Eisenhower's army.

Gen. Somervell has become famous for building army camps, jacking up the Quartermaster Corps, putting new life in the Ordnance Department. But probably his greatest pride and joy is the Pentagon Building, largest office building in the world, where people who have worked there weeks still get lost, where legend has it that a Western Union messenger boy spent so long in its labyrinth that he came out a lieutenant colonel.

So after General Somervell had sent reams of cables ordering all sorts of supplies, his weary chief of staff, Maj. Gen. W. D. Styer, cabled him:

"Why not ship Pentagon?"

Exposure to Cold May Cause Shoulder Pains of Bursitis

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

EIGHTY per cent of painful shoulders are due to bursitis. Some are due to arthritis and some to rupture of the tendon or sheath of a muscle in the shoulder region. A very few are due to what is known as the scalenus anticus syndrome. As far as I know, there is no such thing as neuritis of the shoulder; and when anyone makes this diagnosis, he usually is making a wrong diagnosis.

A bursa is a kind of shock absorber and most joints have bursae around them. A bursa is actually a membrane which looks like a small deflated balloon and is filled with a fluid which does the shock absorbing. The subdeltoid bursa is called that because it is under the deltoid muscle, which is the large muscle on top of the shoulder; it is located between that muscle and the top of the bone of the upper arm, the humerus. When it becomes inflamed, not only does the shock-absorbing function stop, but pain intervenes.

The most frequent cause of inflammation of the subdeltoid bursa is irritation from use on exposure to cold—what might be called "use injury."

Soldiers get it from carrying a gun; people who work in cramped positions at machines often get it. I know of one case of a woman who drove her car leaning on her arm on the open window, which put it in a cramped position, and this in addition to the cold wind that was blowing fixed her up.

The next most frequent cause is focal infection from infected teeth, tonsils or other tissue. Occasionally certain nutritional changes are operative, especially in those cases in which a bursa becomes filled with chalky or calcium deposits. Pain, tenderness and limitation of motion are the main symptoms and they come on quite suddenly. Most cases get well automatically without treatment from a week to two or three months. Some of them go over into a chronic stage and in many of these cases the bursa is seen to

Treatment of an acute case is mostly by rest and splinting of the arm; or exposure to the x-ray often causes resolution. If these measures do not operate, the bursa can be injected hypodermically with procaine and in resistant cases the entire bursa can be removed surgically.

Rupture of Muscles

Another fairly frequent cause of painful shoulder is a rupture of one of the muscles that are inserted in or around the joint. This is usually caused by a sudden, unfamiliar movement which catches the muscle in a taut or twisted position and ruptures the sheath. These cases also get well by simple measures in most instances.

A very peculiar condition which causes painful shoulder is a wrong insertion of the scalenus anticus muscle, which is one of the muscles in the neck. When it is inserted in a wrong position it presses on the nerves which supply the shoulder and arm, and this produces order and arm, and this produces current attacks of pain. This is one of the easiest forms of recurrent and long-drawn-out pain to cure, as it can be relieved by operation under local anesthesia.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

W. T.—What is the meaning of mitral organic heart disease? Could it be cured in time by taking it easy, with good food, plenty of rest and no hard work?

Answer: Mitral heart disease is an inflammation of the mitral valves of the heart. The seriousness of the condition is determined by the amount of inflammation and how much deformity is left in the valve. Most cases, however, are not very serious and patients live to a quite old age. It is impossible to prevent it by diet, or by any other means.

SYNOPSIS

KAY STEVENS, personable young vice president of McClure's department store in New York City, suddenly marries.

JONATHAN (JAKE) KERR, talented pianist, who has refused all offers to turn professional. They are married when Jake reveals the next night that he is on a business trip to California with

DAVID BANNING, JR., 35-year-old president of the concern, who himself had entertained hopes that Kay would marry him. Kay's best friend in the city is HENRIETTA PAGE, who lives in Greenwich Village and is in much the same care-free crowd as Jake.

YESTERDAY: After going out to one party alone while Kay is convalescing, Jake reveals the next night that he is going out again.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

"I'M AFRAID I'll have to go out tonight," Jake told Kay. "I got mixed up in a party last night, promised to go to a prize fight with a bunch who were at the Blakes. Jack Gardner has to fly to Washington this afternoon and they were a man shy. Good ring-side seats. It sounded like fun then. Now I'm sorry I said I'd go, but you know how it is," he ended up lamely.

"Of course, go ahead. It ought to be a good fight," Kay said naturally. David's shrewd eyes mustn't spot her disappointment.

David spoke up quickly. "I'd love to take your place here with Kay, if she's sure she wants me."

Jake's "Sure she does," and Kay's "Of course I do," were spoken at the same moment.

Jake's going out and David's staying for dinner became a regular habit. Kay never got quite used to it. But she understood Jake. He loved her as much as ever. She was sure of that. But he also loved excitement, activity. This craving for some release for his energy probably had its roots in the fact that the useless way he chose to live his life didn't bring him any real satisfaction.

She went back to work at the store the end of February. Against the doctor's orders. But Kay felt that she had to get back to anchor her mind on concrete problems that had no direct connection with her. She was still very thin, not strong.

But there were several factors that weighed more heavily with her than the state of her health. She didn't feel she was actually sick enough to justify the store's paying her salary if she stayed home. And she needed the money. It cost her more to live now that she was married. All of her expenses had gone up. Before she was taken sick, there had been so much entertaining, night clubs, clothes, theater tickets. She and Jake never discussed money. She knew his income was just sufficient to pay his rent, his clothes, his spending money. She paid for everything else. Gladly. A condition that she accepted when she married Jake. She didn't begrudge it. But she had to have her monthly pay check or they would be in a fix.

She didn't begrudge it. But she had to have her monthly pay check or they would be in a fix.

Then when Jake woke up, he usually had a headache. In the afternoon he'd go down to his place, staying there until 5 or 6 o'clock. He'd come home just in time to dress and go out. He felt fine then. But Kay was never with him. He went out mostly with Kay's friends. Het had said one day, half joking, half in earnest:

FLOWERS such as never were on bush or vine bloom riotously over the bright red background of this rayon crepe frock. Peacock blue, sulphur yellow, purple... with bright green leaves, make the pattern which is of Persian or Hindu persuasion. They are a garden print appropriate to the tail end of Winter, when sober colors make one impatient, when nothing but Spring is a tonic. Wonderful as a flash of color with a Winter coat, just as good later on with Spring ensembles, this is a good, cheery model.

SGT. STONE PICKED

Sergeant Ezra Stone, the erstwhile Henry Aldrich of the radio, is the man who combed the nation for the talent that has made "This Is the Army" one of the greatest hits in theatrical history. Sergeant Stone appears in the show himself and will be among the features of the full-hour radio broadcast of Irving Berlin's "This Is the Army" to be presented in the Radio Theatre on Monday, February 22, over Columbia network stations at 9 p. m.

Sergeant Stone saw hundreds of performers in Army camp shows, hunted down other possibilities with a nationwide questionnaire distributed to every Army camp. Eventually he got together more than three hundred singers, dancers, comedians, impersonators, jugglers and entertainers of all kinds.

HOW TO FIX YOUR OWN PLUGS AND CORDS

THESE DAYS almost every housewife has to be her own repairman at some time. By making simple repairs on your own lighting plugs and cords, you can save the time of lighting service men so urgently needed for vital war work! Of course, it's always preferable to get new cords and plugs and to use new wire. If you can't, you can do a good job of patching up the old by following these suggestions.

Inspect your lamp cords where they come out of the lamp base. They fray and crumble quickly at this spot.

1. RIGHT AND WRONG WAY TO WIRE A PLUG

WRONG

Wrong. Wires not put around the prongs first.

RIGHT

Right. Wires put around the prongs. When cord is yanked or jerked, pressure is put on the prongs.

2. CORD FRAYED IN THE MIDDLE

Clean away the frayed or crumbled part.

Wrap up each wire separately using electrician's tape.

Then tape wires together. Adhesive tape cures and cracks very quickly.

3. CORD FRAYED NEAR PLUG

Unscrew screws and pull wire out.

Cut off frayed part of the wire.

Reinsert wire in plug, and screw in place.

4. PLUG SHOULD FIT SNUGLY

Where "A" doesn't fit snugly into "B," plug "B's" springs may have lost their "tension."

Bend plug "A's" prongs apart with your fingers. Just enough to get a snug fit.

Or bend out the ends of the prongs with a pair of pliers.

ing Fathers than any man in three decades, has finally decided to bow out as Assistant Attorney General and sit on the cloistered bench of the U. S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

In doing so, Thurman set a precedent. He turned down a $100,000 law job in New York. That much money is tempting even to a Republican, but especially to a man as poor as Thurman Arnold.

Stepping into a lucrative law job after the relative poverty of a government salary has been the accustomed thing for years, but Arnold said No.

He has two hard-hitting young men who probably will take his place, Hugh Cox as Assistant Attorney General in charge of the Anti-Trust Division and Tom Clark probably as Assistant Attorney General in charge of a new War Division. They will be good. But they'll have to be awfully good to equal the bellicose, bawling, relentless Thurman Arnold.

Real reason Arnold is stepping out is that every time he attempts to prosecute a big corporation, the Army, the Navy, the Interstate Commerce Commission or the Civil Aeronautics Board steps in and says: "Sh-h-h. You might disturb the prosecution of the war." Attorney General Biddle has backed him up to the hilt. But it's tough opposing the Army, the Navy and the White House.

Some day, Thurman says, he's coming back. He wants especially to be in on signing the peace. Meanwhile he says: "I guess I'm like the Marx Brothers—they can be awfully funny for a long while, but finally people get tired of them. A lot of the bureaucrats are not only tired, but awfully sore at me."

MONEY-CHANGERS IN TEMPLE

While Roosevelt was in Casablanca it looks as if some of the money-changers he promised to drive out had crept back into the temple.

The Erie Railroad and Morgan, Stanley Co., offshoot of J. P. Morgan, have just put across a neat bond deal without benefit of competitive bidding. Lack of competitive bidding was the scourge of the old Coolidge Bull Market days.

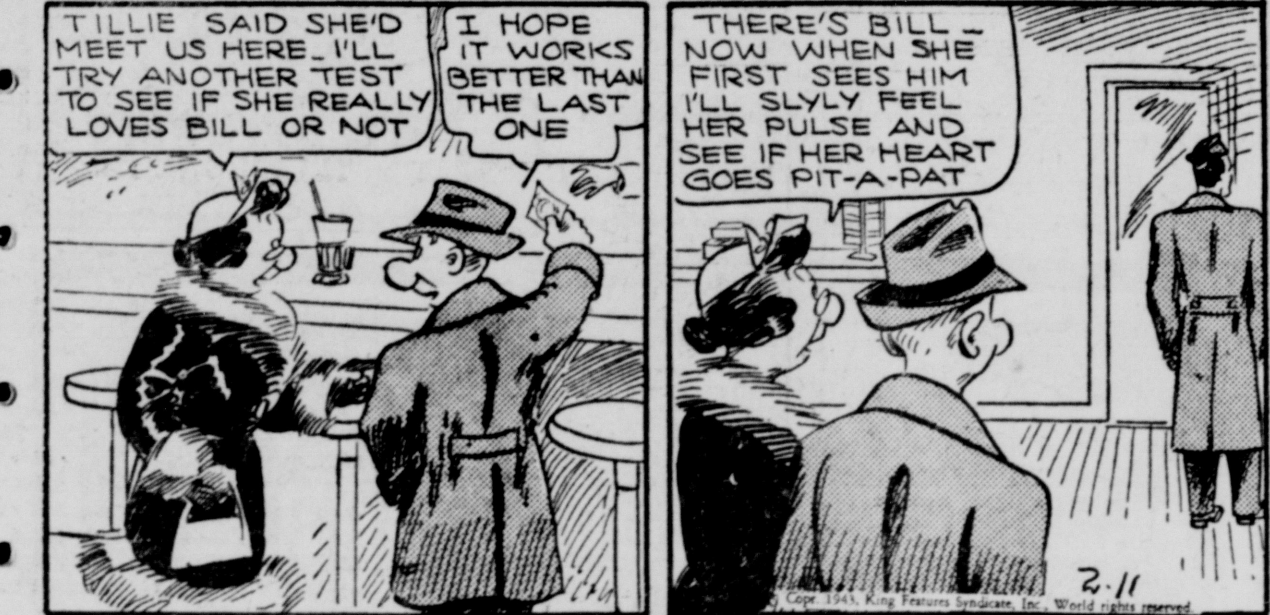

Here is what happened. The Erie Railroad, flush with hauling war orders, went to Jesse Jones' and asked to buy in $14,000,000 of its 4 percent bonds held by the RFC, callable at $105. Jesse obliged, letting the Erie have its bonds for $103 5/8, which incidentally netted the RFC a nice profit of $503,000.

Government Moves to Save Dairy Cattle From Butcher

AGENCY TO BUY COWS, RESELL TO MILK PRODUCERS

Action Taken To Help Boost Farm Production In Pickaway County

COPELAND OUTLINES PLAN

Farmers Have Opportunity To Buy Good Calves At Fair Prices

Government program to help increase the supply of dairy products produced in Pickaway county was started Thursday by Cornell Copeland, Farm Security administration representative, whose offices are in the Pickaway county courthouse.

The Farm Security office is buying dairy cows and dairy calves and heifers from farmers who intend to sell them for slaughter and reselling them to farmers who wish to build their herds.

Mr. Copeland said the price paid by the FSA is beef price plus whatever the animal is worth as a producer or potential producer. The selling price to the farmer will be figured on the same basis. Only farms which have labor, feed and facilities for caring for the additional stock are being considered by the Farm Security office.

"A look into the larger of this county shows us," Mr. Copeland said, "that there is a decided shortage of dairy products. In light of the demand by civilians, army and lend-lease for dairy product consumption, we are faced with a definite shortage of products."

"Realizing the seriousness of this situation the department of agriculture has been charged with the responsibility of keeping dairy cows that have value as producers from being slaughtered, and keeping dairy calves and heifers that are destined for slaughter in the hands of farmers who will raise them for production purposes."

Mr. Copeland pointed out the opportunity for many farmers who expect to remain in the dairy business to obtain some good calves to raise for replacements or to expand their herds. It also affords an opportunity to add a few more cows to the herd to consume surplus pasture and roughage.

"In line with the war needs," the FSA chief said, "a movement of this kind would be very patriotic due to the shortage of dairy products. It takes longer to develop a calf into a cow than it does to build a battleship."
